

FIRING AT THE TARIFF.

Vest's Speech Followed Aldrich's Statement.

NO NEED OF MORE REVENUE.

The Missouriian Thinks the Money Raised by the Last Bond Issue Would Fill the Present Gap—Aldrich's Long Explanation—Cannon Also Spoke.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The debate on the tariff bill in the senate is proceeding with crowded galleries and a large attendance of senators and tariff leaders of the house.

Senator Aldrich declared that the estimates of the house bill by its framers of $60,000,000 increase of revenue if the bill should go into effect July 1, was excessive.

Mr. Aldrich pointed out as one example the wool schedule, from which $24,000,000 out of $76,000,000 increase was expected. The importations in anticipation of tariff changes, would make importation for a year unnecessary, which would cut of this revenue almost entirely.

Said he: "The secretary of the treasury estimates the expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898, at $466,946,047.28. The finance committee estimate the revenue to be derived in the same fiscal year from customs, if the provisions of the bill reported by them should be enacted into law, at $182,744,000. This includes an estimated revenue from the temporary duty on tea of $8,000,000. The committee estimate the receipts from internal revenue for the same period at $170,700,000. If we add to this the treasury estimate for miscellaneous receipts, $20,000,000, and the receipts on account of the postoffice, $96,227,076, we have a total estimated receipts for the fiscal year 1898 of $469,671,076, or an estimated excess of receipts over expenditures for the year of $2,725,028.

"If the estimated revenue from the duty on tea and the additional internal revenue taxes should be omitted from the committee's estimate of receipts, there would be an estimated deficiency of $29,175,000 instead of a surplus of $2,725,028. The committee believe it to be the imperative duty of congress to provide in the measure under consideration for a revenue which will certainly meet the requirements of the government for the next fiscal year.

"Assuming that the necessity for additional revenue exists, and of this we believe there can be no question, there is no economic reason, and certainly none that affects the public interests, why beer and tobacco should not bear their share of additional taxation. The committee believe that the duty proposed on tea will not prove a serious burden upon the consumers of that article."

In reference to the sugar duty Mr. Aldrich said:

"The pressing necessity for securing greatly increased revenues seems to render a return to the Republican policy of free sugar adopted in 1890 an impossibility. The demand for revenues proposed and the belief that every reasonable effort should be made to encourage the production of beet sugar in the United States led a majority of the finance committee to recommend the high rates upon sugar which are contained in the bill now before the senate. "Important changes have been made in schedule K, both on the rates on wool and manufactured woolsens.

"In dealing with the wool schedule the committee has suggested more liberal rates to the domestic woolgrower than it has recommended for the producer of any manufactured article in the schedule. It has also suggested for him a more effective protection than he has ever received under any tariff of the United States at the time of its enactment. The woolgrower is given the benefit of a specific duty upon all classes of wool. Under the operation of this fixed specific duty the amount of protection afforded will increase with each new decline in the foreign value of this new material.

"The committee has aimed to give the woolgrowers a rate of duty which will average from 10 to 20 per cent higher than the rates of earlier tariffs. In doing this it has given a higher protection upon the raw material than upon the manufactured product in every case.

"Very careful consideration has been given to the compensatory duty on woolen goods, with the result of reducing the compensatory rates on low grade goods, into whose manufacture more or less other materials than wool enter. On the high grades compensatory duties are fixed on the same basis that has obtained in all previous tariffs. "The house bill rate of 32 per cent on carpet wools costing less than 13 cents a pound has created more agitation and opposition than any other feature of the wool schedule. It is alleged by the woolgrowers that this low rate of duty on carpet wools destroys the effectiveness of the protection afforded upon the higher grades of wool, by reason of the temptation it offers to import these low wools to be used in chevrons, golf suitings and other popular fabrics which do not require fine wools.

"To remove all possible ground for complaint on this score they have fixed the duties on class 3 wools at 4 cents a pound under 10 cents in value and at 4 cents a pound over that valuation. Under these duties the ad valorem equivalents will range on the various clips from 35 per cent up to 60 per cent, and, in some instances, 70 per cent, and they are higher than in any previous law. It is certain that under these duties foreign carpet wools cannot be imported to take the place of domestic wools in the cloth manufacture.

"At the time the bill was reported the committee stated in their behalf that an amendment looking to the more rapid development and extension of reciprocal trade with foreign countries would be reported from the committee at a later day. The committee have not yet found the opportunity to prepare such an amendment. It seemed to them that the provisions of the house bill in this respect would not prove effective. It is the purpose of the committee to prepare a provision which will enable the government of the United States, within certain fixed limits and without further legislative action, to enter upon arrangements or to negotiate reciprocity treaties looking to an extension of our foreign trade."

Mr. Pettigrew presented the amendment of which he has heretofore given notice that when articles are manufactured by a trust articles of such character imported from abroad shall be free of duty. He said he would ask its consideration immediately after the committee amendments.

Mr. Vest, Democratic member of the finance committee, was then recognized. "We know," he said, "the desperate condition of the country, the ruined homes, the blasted hearts. If prosperity can come from any source, even from our adversaries, we will bless the moment. I do not believe the imposition of higher tariff duties will dispel the clouds hanging above us, bringing back the sunshine and illuminating the whole country."

It had been said, Mr. Vest proceeded, that adversity came with the advent of the Democratic party and prosperity with the Republican party. But that adversity did not come with the advent of the Democratic party. Mr. Vest said he would summon as a witness no less an authority than Mr. William McKinley. The senator read from a report made by Mr. McKinley on April 1, 1890, setting forth the distress which the farmers of the country were suffering. How was it expected, the senator asked, that by increasing the burden of tariff taxes the farmers would be helped to buy more goods. All agreed that there must be sufficient revenue to meet the requirements of the government, that the government credit shall be sustained and her flag honored. But every dollar collected by the government beyond its needs is a crime.

Why was it, Mr. Vest asked, that the Republican party was about to abandon its record and urge a tariff not for protection, but for the amount of revenue it will produce. Why does it abandon its record and propose a tax on tea? The senator said there was at this time an available balance in the treasury of $29,350,650. Deducting the gold reserve of $100,000,000, the available balance was $129,350,650. This vast amount of idle money was now accumulated in the treasury. And yet the senate was told that it must impose on our suffering people additional taxes. When President Harrison turned over the government to President Cleveland the treasury balance stood at $24,128,087. Today there was $105,000,000 more than when Mr. Harrison turned over government affairs to Mr. Cleveland. How could this obvious fact be avoided.

Mr. Chandler interrupted with an inquiry as to where the vast accumulation in the treasury, to which Mr. Vest had alluded, came from.

"We all know," answered Mr. Vest, "that it came from the sale of bonds which I did not approve, but it makes no difference where it came from. There it is in the treasury and what right have you to increase the taxes on the people when enough is in the treasury already." The senator declared that the urgent need was not for greater taxes, but for more money and better prices.

The fall in prices must be stayed before there could be any prosperity. He mentioned as one source of evil that our workers were paid on a gold basis and came into competition with those paid on a silver basis.

"The senator from Nevada (Stewart) usually makes that argument," interposed Mr. Gallinger (N. H.). He has based it usually on Japan's use of silver, and now Japan has repudiated silver.

"You mean Japan was bought out," Mr. Stewart put in.

Mr. Vest then turned to several of the schedules and discussed them in detail.

Mr. Cannon (Silver Rep., Utah) introduced an amendment for a bounty on agricultural exports and spoke briefly. He said the pending bill offered no protection to agricultural staples. The passage of the bill without any protection to the farmer would be a violation of the pledge which the victorious party made in its platform to the voters last year.

SETTLED OLD SCORES.

Presbyterians Adoted Majority Report on Big Building.

GAVE BRIGGS A PARTING SHOT.

The Graduates of Offending Union Ordered Not Taken Under the Care of Any Presbytery—Only One Secretary of Home Missions.

EAGLE LAKE, Ind., May 26.—The Presbyterian general assembly has settled two important questions. The first was not to sell its building in New York and the second to have only one secretary of home missions. The latest echo of the controversy over Dr. Briggs and the Union seminary came up in the report of the judicial committee, which extended to all presbyteries the order to exclude students of that seminary from their care. It was apparent that few commissioners knew what they were voting upon, as the matter came up on appeal from some unusual action of the synod of New York, the name of the case alone being given.

The following reply to the cablegram sent to Queen Victoria was read: "The queen thanks the assembly for its kind telegram.

(Signed) "EDWARDS." One of the special orders for discussion was the two reports on the Presbyterian building at New York.

Dr. Withrow said that many things had been charged against the committee and proceeded to enumerate them. These were in effect that all facts in the case had not been presented; that the Twentieth street property had not been procured after the consent of the assembly had been secured and that the mortgage on the building had been misrepresented as to its amount. To these statements Dr. Withrow replied that the committee had facts and had presented findings on them to relieve the assembly of the trouble; that the acquisition of the Twelfth street property was similar to that of the Twentieth street and that the allegation as to amount of the mortgage was mistaken. As to the legality of the use of the Stuart legacy in the building, it was supported by the opinion of nine eminent lawyers against the view of one.

The proposal to buy the building, attributed to Mr. Kennedy of New York, was long since dead, having expired by limitation. A letter was read from Miss Kennedy's pastor stating that for over a year Mr. McDougall had had no authority to speak for her, and that she had no intention of doing anything further in regard to the matter. This had reference to offers once made by the former to buy the building on certain conditions and the offer of the latter to put the Twelfth street property into proper condition for the use of the boards. As to the proposal to go back to Twelfth street, Dr. Withrow said that the land in question was worth $400,000 at least and that the building would cost $130,000 at 4 per cent. With the addition of cost of position and taxes it would amount to more than $250,000, to which so much objection was made.

In closing the hope was expressed that the assembly would be unanimous in its action.

A motion to lay the minority report and all substitutes on the table was promptly carried by an immense majority. The question of the adoption of the majority report was unanimously carried. The final result was celebrated by singing the "Doxology."

As a sort of compromise measure the following rule was introduced and adopted to govern the action of boards: "When any board receives a legacy, the use of which is not indicated in the will of the testator, the funds shall either be used for current work or invested in accordance with laws provided for the care of trust funds in the state where the board is located. But if not so used they shall be held until the general assembly approves of some different use of less than that which the board may propose to make."

Home missions again occupied the attention of the assembly in the evening at a popular meeting. Dr. John Hall of New York presided and delivered an address. Other addresses were made by Dr. George L. Spining of New Jersey, Dr. H. A. Baird of Montana and Rev. S. B. Rosh of California.

THE BAPTISTS ADJOURNED.

Missionary Cossum Snubbed For His Criticism of Rockefeller.

PITTSBURG, May 26.—The Baptist anniversaries, which have been going on in the Fourth Avenue Baptist church since May 17, are ended.

All who have attended these anniversaries say they have been the most profitable and enthusiastic of any held for many years.

Before the final meeting was formally opened all foreign missionaries, with one exception, were invited to the platform. This exception was Rev. W. H. Cossum of China. This omission is believed to have been no accident. Mr. Cossum is the missionary who caused the only unpleasant incident of the anniversaries by his imputation on the character of John D. Rockefeller, and the opinion of many was that the failure to invite him to the platform was a further protest by the officials as to the remarks made by him.

Rev. Mr. Cossum occupied a seat close to the front and there was a rather set expression on his face.

The missionaries made addresses on their work. The nomination committee made their report and the following officers were elected:

President, Rev. Henry F. Colby, D. D., Ohio; vice presidents, Chester W. Kingsley, Esq., Massachusetts; Rev. D. D. McLaurin, Michigan; recording secretary, Rev. Henry S. Burrage, D. Bucknell, Philadelphia, to fill vacancy caused by the election of Mrs. J. H. Randall as president of the Woman's Baptist Missionary Society of the West, and member of the board of managers, ex officio.

After prayer, the Missionary union adjourned, to meet at the call of the executive committee.

An informal reception was held, farewells said, and the anniversaries were a thing of the past.

At a meeting of the board of managers of the American Baptist Missionary union the following were elected for the coming year:

R. O. Fuller, Cambridge, Mass., chairman; Rev. Moses H. Bixby, D. D., Providence, recording secretary; Rev. Samuel W. Duncan, D. D., Boston, foreign secretary; Rev. H. C. Mabie, D. Mr. Vest then turned to several of the schedules and discussed them in detail.

Mr. Cannon (Silver Rep., Utah) introduced an amendment for a bounty on agricultural exports and spoke briefly. He said the pending bill offered no protection to agricultural staples. The passage of the bill without any protection to the farmer would be a violation of the pledge which the victorious party made in its platform to the voters last year.

SETTLED OLD SCORES.

Presbyterians Adoted Majority Report on Big Building.

GAVE BRIGGS A PARTING SHOT.

The Graduates of Offending Union Ordered Not Taken Under the Care of Any Presbytery—Only One Secretary of Home Missions.

EAGLE LAKE, Ind., May 26.—The Presbyterian general assembly has settled two important questions. The first was not to sell its building in New York and the second to have only one secretary of home missions. The latest echo of the controversy over Dr. Briggs and the Union seminary came up in the report of the judicial committee, which extended to all presbyteries the order to exclude students of that seminary from their care. It was apparent that few commissioners knew what they were voting upon, as the matter came up on appeal from some unusual action of the synod of New York, the name of the case alone being given.

The following reply to the cablegram sent to Queen Victoria was read: "The queen thanks the assembly for its kind telegram.

(Signed) "EDWARDS." One of the special orders for discussion was the two reports on the Presbyterian building at New York.

Dr. Withrow said that many things had been charged against the committee and proceeded to enumerate them. These were in effect that all facts in the case had not been presented; that the Twentieth street property had not been procured after the consent of the assembly had been secured and that the mortgage on the building had been misrepresented as to its amount. To these statements Dr. Withrow replied that the committee had facts and had presented findings on them to relieve the assembly of the trouble; that the acquisition of the Twelfth street property was similar to that of the Twentieth street and that the allegation as to amount of the mortgage was mistaken. As to the legality of the use of the Stuart legacy in the building, it was supported by the opinion of nine eminent lawyers against the view of one.

The proposal to buy the building, attributed to Mr. Kennedy of New York, was long since dead, having expired by limitation. A letter was read from Miss Kennedy's pastor stating that for over a year Mr. McDougall had had no authority to speak for her, and that she had no intention of doing anything further in regard to the matter. This led reference to offers once made by the former to buy the building on certain conditions and the offer of the latter to put the Twelfth street property into proper condition for the use of the boards. As to the proposal to go back to Twelfth street, Dr. Withrow said that the land in question was worth $400,000 at least and that the building would cost $130,000 at 4 per cent. With the addition of cost of position and taxes it would amount to more than $250,000, to which so much objection was made.

In closing the hope was expressed that the assembly would be unanimous in its action.

A motion to lay the minority report and all substitutes on the table was promptly carried by an immense majority. The question of the adoption of the majority report was unanimously carried. The final result was celebrated by singing the "Doxology."

As a sort of compromise measure the following rule was introduced and adopted to govern the action of boards: "When any board receives a legacy, the use of which is not indicated in the will of the testator, the funds shall either be used for current work or invested in accordance with laws provided for the care of trust funds in the state where the board is located. But if not so used they shall be held until the general assembly approves of some different use of less than that which the board may propose to make."

Home missions again occupied the attention of the assembly in the evening at a popular meeting. Dr. John Hall of New York presided and delivered an address. Other addresses were made by Dr. George L. Spining of New Jersey, Dr. H. A. Baird of Montana and Rev. S. B. Rush of California.

THE BAPTISTS ADJOURNED.

Missionary Cossum Snubbed For His Criticism of Rockefeller.

PITTSBURG, May 26.—The Baptist anniversaries, which have been going on in the Fourth Avenue Baptist church since May 17, are ended.

All who have attended these anniversaries say they have been the most profitable and enthusiastic of any held for many years.

Before the final meeting was formally opened all foreign missionaries, with one exception, were invited to the platform. This exception was Rev. W. H. Cossum of China. This omission is believed to have been no accident. Mr. Cossum is the missionary who caused the only unpleasant incident of the anniversaries by his imputation on the character of John D. Rockefeller, and the opinion of many was that the failure to invite him to the platform was a further protest by the officials as to the remarks made by him.

Rev. Mr. Cossum occupied a seat close to the front and there was a rather set expression on his face.

The missionaries made addresses on their work. The nomination committee made their report and the following officers were elected:

President, Rev. Henry F. Colby, D. D., Ohio; vice presidents, Chester W. Kingsley, Esq., Massachusetts; Rev. D. D. McLaurin, Michigan; recording secretary, Rev. Henry S. Burrage, D. D., Portland, Me.; members of the board of managers (Class 3, term expiring in 1900): ministers—W. N. Clarke, D. D., of Hamilton, N. Y.; Rev. E. P. Culler, Lawrence, Mass.; C. R. Henderson, D. Chivers, D. D., Chicago; Rev. C. A. Hobbs, Delavan, Wis.; H. L. Stetson, D. D., Des Moines.

Y., to fill vacancy caused by the death of Samuel Colgate, Esq.; Women—Mrs. A. K. Stickney, Washington, to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Mrs. W. E. Lincoln; Mrs. E. W. Bucknell, Philadelphia, to fill vacancy caused by the election of Mrs. J. H. Randall as president of the Woman's Baptist Missionary Society of the West, and member of the board of managers, ex officio.

After prayer, the Missionary union adjourned, to meet at the call of the executive committee.

An informal reception was held, farewells said, and the anniversaries were a thing of the past.

At a meeting of the board of managers of the American Baptist Missionary union the following were elected for the coming year:

R. O. Fuller, Cambridge, Mass., chairman; Rev. Moses H. Bixby, D. D., Providence, recording secretary; Rev. Samuel W. Duncan, D. D., Boston, foreign secretary; Rev. H. C. Mabie, D. D., Boston, home secretary; E. P. Coleman, Boston, treasurer. Five members of the executive committee, one-third the whole number, were elected as follows: Rev. W. S. Apsey, D. D., Rev. E. E. Wood, D. D., Rev. George E. Merrill, D. D., Charles W. Perkins and George C. Whitney.

THE PARTY OF LIBERTY

State Convention Now In Session at Columbus.

CHAIRMAN IS FOR FREE SILVER.

He Made This One of the Keynotes of His Opening Address—He Also Attacked the Anti-Saloon League—The News of the State.

COLUMBUS, May 26.—The state convention of the Liberty (formerly National) party is being held here with about 50 delegates in attendance. Rev. T. M. Hillman of Darke county was chosen temporary chairman and E. M. Hall of Richland county temporary secretary.

Chairman Hillman, in his address, sounded the keynote of the campaign, emphasizing the declaration of the party for free coinage of silver and attacking the Anti-Saloon League.

THE MILITARY SURGEONS.

Interesting Subjects Depleted at the Columbus Convention.

COLUMBUS, May 26.—At the session of the military surgeons held in the state senate chamber papers were read by Medical Inspector (Commander) John C. Wise, United States navy, Washington; Surgeon (Lieutenant Commander) C. A. Siegfried, United States navy, Newport, R. I.; Lieutenant Colonel Leonard B. Almy, medical director (retired), Norwich, Conn.; Major J. K. Weaver, surgeon First brigade, N. G. Pa., Norristown, Pa.; Major Julian La Piere, surgeon N. G. Conn., Norwich, Conn., and Colonel Clayton Parkhill, surgeon general N. G. C., Denver.

A resolution opposing a proposition to request the states to send official delegates to the convention was defeated.

Last night Governor and Mrs. Bushnell gave a reception in honor of the delegates and their wives.

LADY SAVED A BURGLAR.

Escaped a Life Sentence Through Efforts of a Woman Attorney.

COLUMBUS, May 26.—Burglar Jim Anderson of Cincinnati has escaped life imprisonment under the habitual criminal act. Jim secured a woman lawyer to defend him—Mrs. Dora Sandoe Bachman.

Judge Pugh of the Franklin county common pleas court sustained her plea in bar that, as Governor Bishop pardoned Anderson while he was serving one of two terms in the penitentiary, he could not be tried under the habitual criminal law.

The law requires a service of two terms in the penitentiary before this charge can be preferred. Accordingly, Anderson will be tried only for having robbed one Ollie Gump of a diamond.

MARIETTA OUT AT SEA.

The Ohio Gunboat Showing Up Well on Speed Trial.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—The gunboat Marietta has gone out, having on board the officers appointed to make her official trial, and proceeded to the measured mile off Bluff Point. The following runs over the course were made to determine the speed of the ship as required in the contract of both the Marietta and Wheeling:

Two at (approximately) seven knots; two at (approximately) nine knots; four at (approximately) ten knots; four at (approximately) eleven knots.

The highest speed reached at any time during these trials, as corrected for tide, was 11.4 knots per hour.

The remaining four runs over the measured mile will take place today.

ST. LOUIS, May 26.—When seen President Von Der Ahe said that the St. Louis baseball club and franchise had not been sold and would not be, and as far as he was concerned, the negotiations with the Robisons of Cleveland were off.

The Holy House Loretto.

About 15 miles south of Ancona on the main line is the station of Loretto, and on the hillside, about 8 miles from the sea, stands the city. Towering far above the town rise the great dome and campanile of the wonderful fortified church which shelters within it the santa casa, or holy house, every year the object of pilgrimage of so many thousands of the faithful. On entering the church one sees at once, standing under the dome, a strange low chapel covered with white marble carving and gleaming sculpture. A host of sixteenth century artists—chief among them Sansovino—carried out Bramante's design for the marble casing of the holy house. But in striking contrast to the rich exterior are the plain and rough stone walls of the interior. The innumerable silver lamps give a dim religious light, and the jewels on the image of the Madonna and the Child—a wonderful black image, carved, it is said, by St. Luke from cedar of Lebanon—scintillate in the gloom like innumerable stars.

Such is the holy house which angels are said to have brought from Nazareth in the thirteenth century in order to save it from desecration by the infidel. But the house was not brought immediately to Loretto. The angels placed it first on a hilltop near Fiume, on the Dalmatian shore. There it stayed for three years, when it was moved again and deposited in a wood on the opposite side of the Adriatic, near Recanati. The wood was a laurel wood, and the house was consequently called domus lauretana, or house of Loretto. Twice more, however, the house was miraculously moved short distances, till it was at length placed in its present position, not a very convenient one, it might have been imagined, for it was then the middle of the public road.

It seems almost unnecessary to say that there have been those that have made merry at this frequent "translation" of the holy house, yet an innumerable multitude of the great ones of the earth, including many popes and kings, have paid homage to this black Madonna in its rude stone cottage.—Westminster Gazette.

Belief Comes With Knowledge.

"Travelers' tales," although they have always been regarded with suspicion, were received by our ancestors in a singularly confiding spirit, and Marco Polo, and "that archliar" even, Sir John Mandeville himself, were treated with more or less respect. But as if to make up for their readiness to believe in "Gorgons and Hydras and Chimeras dire," when at a distance, other generations were singularly distrustful of most things near at hand. They displayed to a singular extent the wonderful skepticism that in all things directly touching the person generally accompanies ignorance. The state of mind was very much that of the honest farmer in the city who is in constant dread of being "buncoed."

Ignorance doubts itself, and consequently everybody and everything else. It is only complete knowledge that is more nearly credulous, and advance toward it has been shown as much by what men are willing to believe and the readiness with which they believe it as by anything else. When the marvels of the Roentgen rays were announced, the attention of the world was brought up with a round turn by a discovery almost dramatic in its suddenness and surprise. Such sharp demands are becoming more and more frequent, but if there is anything more wonderful than the amazing nature of such inventions it is the way in which they are received.—Scribner's.

How Dr. Cuyler Became a Minister.

Peter Carter, in Golden Rule, tells how the Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler became a minister. It was chiefly owing to his mother's influence. Most of Theodore's immediate male ancestors were distinguished lawyers, and one of them offered him a fine library if he would enter the legal profession. His mother, however, had consecrated him to the ministry, and fearing that he might be persuaded into the study of law she sent him abroad, which was the first of his many trips across the sea. While he was absent in Europe, his mother engaged a room for him at Princeton Theological seminary, so strong was her faith that he was to be a minister. On his return from Europe young Cuyler went with his mother to visit some relatives near Ludlowville, N. Y., and while there made two or three addresses at small religious meetings. His addresses were so successful in their effect that he was convinced that the Christian ministry was his proper field of labor.

Ensilage.

Ensilage is made by cutting the cornstalk when the ear is still in the milk, chopping up stalk, blade, corn and cob and packing the green food in a vat usually about 20 feet deep. After the mass has been allowed to ferment for from 48 to 60 hours, depending on the warmth of the weather, the contents of the vat is weighted down and fermentation ceases. The resultant is food treated with lactic acid, the first operation in a cow's stomach. A cow fed with ensilage is spared the wear and tear on her system of the first digestive processes. A vat of ensilage will keep two years and longer. The food when taken out of the vat is as it was when the fermentation stopped. The ancient

Romans used ensilage, and its value was rediscovered 40 years ago by Goffard, a Frenchman.—New York Post.

A Philosopher Corrected.

When Benjamin Franklin went to Paris as the representative of the revolted American colonies, he had to be presented to the king, and it was a matter of some solicitude with him how he should array himself for that ceremony.

He was anxious not to be considered lacking in respect for the French court, where much formality regarding dress was observed, but he knew it would be an affectation for so simple a republican as he was to imitate the court dress. He decided, therefore, and wisely, to appear in a plain suit of black velvet, with white silk stockings and black shoes.

Nevertheless, he deemed it best to make one concession to the French fashion of the time by wearing a wig—something which he had not been accustomed to do. He ordered of a wig-maker the largest one the man had, and in season for the presentation the man himself brought the wig and set about trying it on.

But do all he could the man could not squeeze the wig on the philosopher's head. He tried and tried and also essayed to convince Franklin against the evidence of his senses that the wig was a fit. Finally Franklin said:

"I tell you, man, your wig is not large enough."

Upon this the Frenchman threw the wig down in a rage.

"Monsieur," he said, "that is impossible. It is not the wig which is too small. It is the head which is too large."

Accepting the rebuke as deserved, Franklin went to the presentation without any wig and found there that the simplicity of his dress and the honesty and candor of his manners won him more esteem at the court than any concession to fashion could possibly have done.—Youth's Companion.

Possible Decay of the French Cuisine.

The tendency in all the French restaurants of the present day is to prepare meals for their chance customers who may happen in at any time of the day. Meals are eaten in a greater hurry than formerly, even in France, where it used to be the habit during the fiercest revolutionary and communistic struggles when the time of dejeuner came for each side to stop fighting for an hour or so and devote themselves to the midday meal. The hurry and anxiety of modern life are slowly destroying whatever was distinctive in French cooking, which cannot be properly done in haste or when food is required in very large quantities.

The development of club life is partly responsible for this, and the latter is only another sign of the deep lying social problems which confront modern existence at every step. Men in fashionable society dine more frequently the club than they do at their own homes. Fewer people marry than formerly. Home life is decreasing and club life increasing. Hence the last refuge of the Parisian chef is at the fashionable clubhouses, which are now counted by the score, and most of which set very good tables.—Chautauquan.

He Got the Votes.

The late Governor Albert G. Porter of Indiana was a good campaigner. In one of his stumping tours he was to speak in Morgan county. A number of fine carriages were at the station as the train drew up to carry Mr. Porter and the persons who were with him to the place of speaking. Off at one side was an old fashioned "carryall," with ragged oilcloth curtains, wheels incrustated with mud, presenting a sadly dilapidated appearance. Mr. Porter looked beyond the carriages to this conveyance, and his clear blue eye lighted with pleasure as he recognized the driver, who was a well known mossbacked Democrat. "Why, George," said Mr. Porter, extending his hand, "I'm glad you're here. Gentlemen," turning to the persons at the carriages, who were awaiting him, "never mind me. I'm going to ride over with my old friend George." His "old friend George" had four grown sons, all Democrats, but every vote in the family was given to the handsome young man who could mix with the plain people, and who had ridden with "dad" to the place of meeting.—New York Tribune.

Better Than Orthography.

The old man had given his son a very fair education and had taken him into his shop. The young fellow was overnice about a great many things, but the father made no comment. One day an order came in from a customer.

"I wish to goodness," exclaimed the son, "that Gibson would learn to spell!"

"What's the matter with it?" inquired the father cheerfully.

"Why, he spells coffee with a 'k.'"

"No, does he? I never noticed it."

"Of course you never did," said the son pettishly. "You never notice anything like that."

"Perhaps not, my son," replied the old man gently, "but there is one thing I do notice, which you will learn by and by, and that is that Gibson pays cash."

A Mother and a Revolver Worked Wonders.

THE YOUNG MAN WAS SCARED

An Incident in Which the Determination of a Woman Brought Restitution For the Manner in Which Her Daughter Had Been Treated.

The gossip friends of a well known young man of the city tell a story which he does not like to hear, for some of them firmly believe that he was for a few moments closer to death than he will ever be until his last moment on earth has come.

It seems that he and a number of other young men have been paying entirely too much attention to the daughter of a widow, who is little more than a child. The mother learned of her dangerous condition, and when the young man in question chanced to call, saw him alone. Standing between him and the door, she presented a revolver, and demanded an explanation. The young man hesitated, but the mother so plainly showed her determination that he talked freely. There was a great deal of talk of criminal prosecution, but it was eventually decided that the matter should be settled on another basis. The affair caused a profound sensation among the people who know the particulars.

GOING TO MASSILLON.

Liverpool Will Be Represented by a Dozen Sons of Veterans.

Twelve members of General Garfield Camp, Sons of Veterans, will leave next Tuesday to attend the division encampment which will be held at Massillon. The regular delegate is W. R. Dawson, but the others are entitled to a vote in the convention from the fact that they are all past captains. Several months ago the local camp were asked to exemplify the secret work at the convention, but owing to the amount of business on hand it will have to be passed. Governor Bushnell will be in attendance.

LEARN TO WRITE.

Yes Mothers Your Children Should Be Taught Writing.

What a shame it is that our children should not be taught to write a good plain hand. True writing is not taught in our public schools, but don't you know it is taught by Prof. Cooper, the famous penman, and one of the best writing teachers East Liverpool has ever known. Why not send your children to him at the Ohio Valley Business College and have them taught writing during vacation?

ST. STEPHEN'S ENTERTAINMENT.

A Musical Program and an Enjoyable Evening.

The entertainment given in St. Stephen's parish building, last evening, was most enjoyable and largely attended. The musical program was very good. The mandolin club and Girls' band were prominent features. The entertainment closed with the farce "My Turn Next," in which Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Winkle, Mr. Burchell, Mrs. Thompson, Miss Hindle, Mr. Stoddard and Mr. Roebottom did well.

HIT A COW.

A Street Car Went Through a Drove of Cattle.

Motorman Eck Allison, in charge of car No. 8, this morning in Washington street ran through a drove of cattle, striking a cow and knocking it down. The motorman apparently made no effort to stop until after the accident, instead of slowing up until it was off the track. Luckily the animal was not seriously injured, or a damage suit would probably have resulted.

A Challenge.

Any one wishing to accept either of these challenges will find me at the Columbia billiard hall No 112 Sixth street, East Liverpool, O.

The Boys Fought.

The small boys had a free-for-all fight in Fourth street last evening. The father of a lad who got considerably the worst of the battle appeared on the scene, and for a time it looked as though he would take an interesting part, but he contented himself with giving the other youngsters a piece of his mind.

It seems almost unnecessary to say that there have been those that have made merry at this frequent "translation" of the holy house, yet an innumerable multitude of the great ones of the earth, including many popes and kings, have paid homage to this black Madonna in its rude stone cottage.—Westminster Gazette.

Belief Comes With Knowledge.

"Travelers' tales," although they have always been regarded with suspicion, were received by our ancestors in a singularly confiding spirit, and Marco Polo, and "that archliar" even, Sir John Mandeville himself, were treated with more or less respect. But as if to make up for their readiness to believe in "Gorgons and Hydras and Chimeras dire," when at a distance, other generations were singularly distrustful of most things near at hand. They displayed to a singular extent the wonderful skepticism that in all things directly touching the person generally accompanies ignorance. The state of mind was very much that of the honest farmer in the city who is in constant dread of being "buncoed."

Ignorance doubts itself, and consequently everybody and everything else. It is only complete knowledge that is more nearly credulous, and advance toward it has been shown as much by what men are willing to believe and the readiness with which they believe it as by anything else. When the marvels of the Roentgen rays were announced, the attention of the world was brought up with a round turn by a discovery almost dramatic in its suddenness and surprise. Such sharp demands are becoming more and more frequent, but if there is anything more wonderful than the amazing nature of such inventions it is the way in which they are received.—Scribner's.

How Dr. Cuyler Became a Minister.

Peter Carter, in Golden Rule, tells how the Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler became a minister. It was chiefly owing to his mother's influence. Most of Theodore's immediate male ancestors were distinguished lawyers, and one of them offered him a fine library if he would enter the legal profession. His mother, however, had consecrated him to the ministry, and fearing that he might be persuaded into the study of law she sent him abroad, which was the first of his many trips across the sea. While he was absent in Europe, his mother engaged a room for him at Princeton Theological seminary, so strong was her faith that he was to be a minister. On his return from Europe young Cuyler went with his mother to visit some relatives near Ludlowville, N. Y., and while there made two or three addresses at small religious meetings. His addresses were so successful in their effect that he was convinced that the Christian ministry was his proper field of labor.

Ensilage.

Ensilage is made by cutting the cornstalk when the ear is still in the milk, chopping up stalk, blade, corn and cob and packing the green food in a vat usually about 20 feet deep. After the mass has been allowed to ferment for from 48 to 60 hours, depending on the warmth of the weather, the contents of the vat is weighted down and fermentation ceases. The resultant is food treated with lactic acid, the first operation in a cow's stomach. A cow fed with ensilage is spared the wear and tear on her system of the first digestive processes. A vat of ensilage will keep two years and longer. The food when taken out of the vat is as it was when the fermentation stopped. The ancient

Romans used ensilage, and its value was rediscovered 40 years ago by Goffard, a Frenchman.—New York Post.

A Philosopher Corrected.

When Benjamin Franklin went to Paris as the representative of the revolted American colonies, he had to be presented to the king, and it was a matter of some solicitude with him how he should array himself for that ceremony.

He was anxious not to be considered lacking in respect for the French court, where much formality regarding dress was observed, but he knew it would be an affectation for so simple a republican as he was to imitate the court dress. He decided, therefore, and wisely, to appear in a plain suit of black velvet, with white silk stockings and black shoes.

Nevertheless, he deemed it best to make one concession to the French fashion of the time by wearing a wig—something which he had not been accustomed to do. He ordered of a wig-maker the largest one the man had, and in season for the presentation the man himself brought the wig and set about trying it on.

But do all he could the man could not squeeze the wig on the philosopher's head. He tried and tried and also essayed to convince Franklin against the evidence of his senses that the wig was a fit. Finally Franklin said:

"I tell you, man, your wig is not large enough."

Upon this the Frenchman threw the wig down in a rage.

"Monsieur," he said, "that is impossible. It is not the wig which is too small. It is the head which is too large."

Accepting the rebuke as deserved, Franklin went to the presentation without any wig and found there that the simplicity of his dress and the honesty and candor of his manners won him more esteem at the court than any concession to fashion could possibly have done.—Youth's Companion.

Possible Decay of the French Cuisine.

The tendency in all the French restaurants of the present day is to prepare meals for their chance customers who may happen in at any time of the day. Meals are eaten in a greater hurry than formerly, even in France, where it used to be the habit during the fiercest revolutionary and communistic struggles when the time of dejeuner came for each side to stop fighting for an hour or so and devote themselves to the midday meal. The hurry and anxiety of modern life are slowly destroying whatever was distinctive in French cooking, which cannot be properly done in haste or when food is required in very large quantities.

The development of club life is partly responsible for this, and the latter is only another sign of the deep lying social problems which confront modern existence at every step. Men in fashionable society dine more frequently the club than they do at their own homes. Fewer people marry than formerly. Home life is decreasing and club life increasing. Hence the last refuge of the Parisian chef is at the fashionable clubhouses, which are now counted by the score, and most of which set very good tables.—Chautauquan.

He Got the Votes.

The late Governor Albert G. Porter of Indiana was a good campaigner. In one of his stumping tours he was to speak in Morgan county. A number of fine carriages were at the station as the train drew up to carry Mr. Porter and the persons who were with him to the place of speaking. Off at one side was an old fashioned "carryall," with ragged oilcloth curtains, wheels incrustated with mud, presenting a sadly dilapidated appearance. Mr. Porter looked beyond the carriages to this conveyance, and his clear blue eye lighted with pleasure as he recognized the driver, who was a well known mossbacked Democrat. "Why, George," said Mr. Porter, extending his hand, "I'm glad you're here. Gentlemen," turning to the persons at the carriages, who were awaiting him, "never mind me. I'm going to ride over with my old friend George." His "old friend George" had four grown sons, all Democrats, but every vote in the family was given to the handsome young man who could mix with the plain people, and who had ridden with "dad" to the place of meeting.—New York Tribune.

Better Than Orthography.

The old man had given his son a very fair education and had taken him into his shop. The young fellow was overnice about a great many things, but the father made no comment. One day an order came in from a customer.

"I wish to goodness," exclaimed the son, "that Gibson would learn to spell!"

"What's the matter with it?" inquired the father cheerfully.

"Why, he spells coffee with a 'k.'"

"No, does he? I never noticed it."

"Of course you never did," said the son pettishly. "You never notice anything like that."

"Perhaps not, my son," replied the old man gently, "but there is one thing I do notice, which you will learn by and by, and that is that Gibson pays cash."

WAS QUICKLY SETTLED

A Mother and a Revolver Worked Wonders.

THE YOUNG MAN WAS SCARED

An Incident In Which the Determination of a Woman Brought Restitution For the Manner In Which Her Daughter Had Been Treated.

The gossip friends of a well known young man of the city tell a story which he does not like to hear, for some of them firmly believe that he was for a few moments closer to death than he will ever be until his last moment on earth has come.

It seems that he and a number of other young men have been paying entirely too much attention to the daughter of a widow, who is little more than a child. The mother learned of her dangerous condition, and when the young man in question chanced to call, saw him alone. Standing between him and the door, she presented a revolver, and demanded an explanation. The young man hesitated, but the mother so plainly showed her determination that he talked freely. There was a great deal of talk of criminal prosecution, but it was eventually decided that the matter should be settled on another basis. The affair caused a profound sensation among the people who know the particulars.

GOING TO MASSILLON.

Liverpool Will Be Represented by a Dozen Sons of Veterans.

Twelve members of General Garfield Camp, Sons of Veterans, will leave next Tuesday to attend the division encampment which will be held at Massillon. The regular delegate is W. R. Dawson, but the others are entitled to a vote in the convention from the fact that they are all past captains. Several months ago the local camp were asked to exemplify the secret work at the convention, but owing to the amount of business on hand it will have to be passed. Governor Bushnell will be in attendance.

LEARN TO WRITE.

Yes Mothers Your Children Should Be Taught Writing.

What a shame it is that our children should not be taught to write a good plain hand. True writing is not taught in our public schools, but don't you know it is taught by Prof. Cooper, the famous penman, and one of the best writing teachers East Liverpool has ever known. Why not send your children to him at the Ohio Valley Business College and have them taught writing during vacation?

HIT A COW.

A Street Car Went Through a Drove of Cattle.

Motorman Eck Allison, in charge of car No. 8, this morning in Washington street ran through a drove of cattle, striking a cow and knocking it down. The motorman apparently made no effort to stop until after the accident, instead of slowing up until it was off the track. Luckily the animal was not seriously injured, or a damage suit would probably have resulted.

The Boys Fought.

The small boys had a free-for-all fight in Fourth street last evening. The father of a lad who got considerably the worst of the battle appeared on the scene, and for a time it looked as though he would take an interesting part, but he contented himself with giving the other youngsters a piece of his mind.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., WEDNESDAY, MAY 26

The scorch continues to scorch, and Fourth, Fifth and Sixth streets are dangerous places for one seeking to cross.

The Democratic press has resumed its cry against Tom Reed, but the speaker of the house continues to live and smile, and ignore the Democrats, as of old.

WEYLER says the old world will stand by him if this country interferes in behalf of Cuba. After that little affair in the Orient, we cannot but think the bloody butcher has some ground for his claim.

THERE are thousands of destitute and suffering people in the districts recently visited by floods in the south. Will America be as generous to them as it has been to the suffering subjects of Great Britain in India?

UNABLE to find one weak point in what he has done, the political enemies of President McKinley are reduced to the extremity of charging him with having no backbone, an utterance which can never be supported by argument.

JAPANESE potters have quit making ware for the American trade long enough to examine the Dingley bill and register a protest against its passage. Every word from a foreign nation condemning the measure should be quickly added to the arguments for its passage.

THERE is no reason for the Republicans of this state to feel apprehension for the safety of the party next November. The program will be carried out at the Toledo convention, and the party will go before the people a united body, with but one end in view. On the other hand, the Democrats are already wrangling over a number of unimportant matters, but the bitterness brewing is not of that kind calculated to win political victories.

A WORKING DELEGATION.

Ohio is to be congratulated upon being represented in congress by men who look after the interests of the state. The meeting last night at which the tariff and its probable effect upon our industries was discussed is in marked contrast with the other delegation when the Wilson bill was reported back to the senate. Did our congressmen then manifest so much interest as to assemble and discuss the requirements of their constituents? Did they devote any part of their time to formally exchanging views which would result in benefit to themselves and the people who gave them position? If they did they were careful to keep it from the public. It is a working delegation we now have in Washington. They have already done something, and there are reasons for believing they will do more.

STEEL FENCES

Will Be Erected Along the Cleveland and Pittsburg.

The Cleveland and Pittsburg division is to be protected from cattle by steel fences. One thousand steel posts have been ordered from the Bond Steel Post company, of Adrian, Mich., and they are to be put down at once. It is understood that woven wire steel fences will be attached to the posts. Such fences are very handsome and durable, and easily kept in repair, and are rapidly taking the place of other kinds of fences.

A Misunderstanding.

Through a misunderstanding a number of young people were this afternoon preparing to dance at Rock Spring. The mistake, however, became known in time to prevent the party from crossing the river, Manager McDonald not having arranged for the opening of the grounds until Saturday.

MADE THE FIRST TRIP

A Car Went Over the Chester Street Railway.

COLONEL HILL HAD THE LEVER

The Run Was Made In Good Time, and the Line Was Found to Be In First Class Order—It Has Not Been Decided When the Regular Service Will Start.

One hour and three minutes was occupied by street car No 11 to make the first trip from Second and Union streets to Rock Spring and return this morning.

This was the first car to run over the new bridge, and the trip was made without mishap save one, and that was when the car ran over the switch in Second street. As the rails were well covered with dirt, some time was lost in cleaning them. When the car reached the curve entering the bridge Colonel Hill was noticed as the motorman. He did not have the regulation uniform, but John Rinehart secured a motorman's cap, and put it on the colonel's head. Several workmen were greasing the curve, and when this was finished, the motorman was given two bells, and off they went. The run to the spring was made without a mishap. The passengers tarried a short time at the grounds, and after going to the spring returned to the city.

Among those on the car were: J. E. McDonald, Superintendent Andrews, John Rinehart, Colonel Hill, Professor J. G. Kerry and Contractor Shrader.

Cars will be run regularly soon, and when the new cars arrive they will be put on the road. The power was furnished by the East Liverpool and Wells-ville company, and was not as strong as it will be in the future.

Grant's Change of Complexion.

Colonel Parker, the Indian, had been diligently employed in these busy days helping to take care of General Grant's correspondence. He wrote an excellent hand, and as one of the military secretaries often overhauled the general's correspondence and prepared answers to his private letters. This evening he was seated at the writing table in the general's tent, while his chief was standing at a little distance outside talking with some of the staff. A citizen, who had come to City Point in the employ of the sanitary commission and who had been at Cairo when the general took command there in 1861, approached the group and inquired: "Where is the old man's tent? I'd like to get a look at him. Haven't seen him for three years." Rawlins, to avoid being interrupted, said, "That's his tent," at the same time pointing to it.

The man stepped over to the tent, looked in, and saw the swarthy features of Parker as he sat in the general's chair. The visitor seemed a little puzzled, and as he walked away was heard to remark, "Yes, that's him, but he's got all fired sunburned since I last had a look at him." The general was greatly amused by the incident and repeated the remark afterward to Parker, who enjoyed it as much as the others.—"Campaigning With Grant," by General Horace Porter, in Century.

Hints to Young Authors.

There is but one way for an author to get his wares before the editors, and that is to send his manuscript to the periodical to which he believes it to be best suited. If he deals with the principal publications, he can always feel certain of courteous treatment and honest dealings. Prices vary and depend entirely on the value of the material to the periodical. Editors are always glad to examine manuscripts sent to them, and, all talk to the contrary notwithstanding, are anxious to discover unknown talent.—Edward W. Bok in Ladies' Home Journal.

Looking Upward.

One who acustoms himself to think of pure and holy things, who sets his affections on things above and strives to reach whatever things are lovely, will grow upward toward the things he loves and thinks upon. But one who lets his mind turn habitually to debasing things, things unholy, unclean, sensual, will find his whole soul bending downward and growing toward the earth.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

The Occult.

The Orient—But you will not deny that our attainments in occult science at least far surpass yours.

The Occident—Occult? Say, right in my own town there's a fortune teller that I'll back against anything that ever came down the pike. Why, she's the seventh daughter of the seventh daughter of the seventh wife of a seventh husband.—Detroit Journal.

It is proposed to erect in London a terrestrial globe on a scale of one million five hundred thousandth of nature—i. e., a globe having a diameter of 84 feet and showing the earth's surface on a scale of about eight miles to the inch.

Sarcasm.

Greene—Whom are your children said to take after, Mr. Enpeck?
(Enpeck (with a mental reservation)—The younger, with a sweet smile and angelic temper, takes after his mother. The elder, that cross eyed young viper, takes after me, I'm informed.—London Fun.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., WEDNESDAY, MAY 26

MADE THE FIRST TRIP

A Car Went Over the Chester Street Railway.

COLONEL HILL HAD THE LEVER

The Run Was Made In Good Time, and the Line Was Found to Be In First Class Order—It Has Not Been Decided When the Regular Service Will Start.

One hour and three minutes was occupied by street car No 11 to make the first trip from Second and Union streets to Rock Spring and return this morning.

This was the first car to run over the new bridge, and the trip was made without mishap save one, and that was when the car ran over the switch in Second street. As the rails were well covered with dirt, some time was lost in cleaning them. When the car reached the curve entering the bridge Colonel Hill was noticed as the motorman. He did not have the regulation uniform, but John Rinehart secured a motorman's cap, and put it on the colonel's head. Several workmen were greasing the curve, and when this was finished, the motorman was given two bells, and off they went. The run to the spring was made without a mishap. The passengers tarried a short time at the grounds, and after going to the spring returned to the city.

Among those on the car were: J. E. McDonald, Superintendent Andrews, John Rinehart, Colonel Hill, Professor J. G. Kerry and Contractor Shrader.

Cars will be run regularly soon, and when the new cars arrive they will be put on the road. The power was furnished by the East Liverpool and Wells-ville company, and was not as strong as it will be in the future.

Grant's Change of Complexion.

Colonel Parker, the Indian, had been diligently employed in these busy days helping to take care of General Grant's correspondence. He wrote an excellent hand, and as one of the military secretaries often overhauled the general's correspondence and prepared answers to his private letters. This evening he was seated at the writing table in the general's tent, while his chief was standing at a little distance outside talking with some of the staff. A citizen, who had come to City Point in the employ of the sanitary commission and who had been at Cairo when the general took command there in 1861, approached the group and inquired: "Where is the old man's tent? I'd like to get a look at him. Haven't seen him for three years." Rawlins, to avoid being interrupted, said, "That's his tent," at the same time pointing to it.

The man stepped over to the tent, looked in, and saw the swarthy features of Parker as he sat in the general's chair. The visitor seemed a little puzzled, and as he walked away was heard to remark, "Yes, that's him, but he's got all fired sunburned since I last had a look at him." The general was greatly amused by the incident and repeated the remark afterward to Parker, who enjoyed it as much as the others.—"Campaigning With Grant," by General Horace Porter, in Century.

Hints to Young Authors.

There is but one way for an author to get his wares before the editors, and that is to send his manuscript to the periodical to which he believes it to be best suited. If he deals with the principal publications, he can always feel certain of courteous treatment and honest dealings. Prices vary and depend entirely on the value of the material to the periodical. Editors are always glad to examine manuscripts sent to them, and all talk to the contrary notwithstanding, are anxious to discover unknown talent.—Edward W. Bok in Ladies' Home Journal.

Looking Upward.

One who accustoms himself to think of pure and holy things, who sets his affections on things above and strives to reach whatever things are lovely, will grow upward toward the things he loves and thinks upon. But one who lets his mind turn habitually to debasing things, things unholy, unclean, sensual, will find his whole soul bending downward and growing toward the earth.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

The Occult.

The Orient—But you will not deny that our attainments in occult science at least far surpass yours. The Occident—Occult? Say, right in my own town there's a fortune teller that I'll back against anything that ever came down the pike. Why, she's the seventh daughter of the seventh daughter of the seventh wife of a seventh husband.—Detroit Journal.

It is proposed to erect in London a terrestrial globe on a scale of one million five hundred thousandth of nature—i. e., a globe having a diameter of 84 feet and showing the earth's surface on a scale of about eight miles to the inch.

THE BOARD WILL WAIT

No Election of Superintendent Last Night.

MORE MONEY IS NEEDED

Important Meeting at Which There Was a Surprise or Two—Superintendent Sanor Gave a Lengthy and Interesting Report.

The board of education held an extra session in the central building last evening with every member present. After the reading of the scriptures and prayer by Mr. McClain the minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted, and Clerk Norris gave the following estimate of money needed next year: Redemption of loans, $2,000; interest, $4,020; interest on borrowed money, $600; janitor, $2,607; teachers and superintendent, $17,910; salary increase, $700; books, $720; insurance, $176; librarian, $90; clerk's salary, $200; fuel, $1,000; supplies, $200; repairs, $50; transient officer, $225; sundries, $600; total, $31,548.

The several members reported the condition of the buildings in their districts. The general tone of the remarks was in reference to the placing of new blackboards, papering, painting and a thorough renovation of each building. The estimate of the repairs was $500. Mr. Vodrey said that the board could secure a tax of seven mills and this would cover the deficiency. Nine mills will be asked. Last year it was eight mills.

Professor Sanor spoke of the crowded condition of the schools. Reference was made to a primary room in the Central building where 80 pupils have been attending. He stated that justice in teaching could not be given scholars who were compelled to attend a school where the rooms were crowded. He suggested a remedy, and as a result a committee was appointed to investigate the matter, and report at the next meeting.

Mr. Fisher said: "I understand the roof of the Central building needs repairing."

"We will attend to that later," said the chair.

The report of the superintendent was read and accepted by the board. The report was an able one. It is published in part elsewhere.

Mr. McClain moved that a superintendent be elected.

"I do not think we are prepared to vote on this matter tonight," said Mr. Vodrey. "We should not be hasty, and due consideration should be given the matter. There are few of us who have given the matter much thought, and for that reason I would suggest the motion be reconsidered."

"Yes, we have a superintendent until the close of the term," said Mr. Norris, "and we pay him up to that time. I would suggest it be held at the next regular meeting June 4." The motion to reconsider passed without a murmur, as did a motion to hold the election on June 4.

Mr. McGraw suggested the census of the city be taken when the school children are numbered. He had scarcely finished when Mr. Murphy moved the adjournment.

RAPID PROGRESS.

It Has Been Made by the Public Schools.

Superintendent Sanor's report was a lengthy document, covering the four years he has been in office. He recalled that the position had been tendered him without his solicitation, and for two years the schools were handicapped by occupying rented quarters, unsuited for school purposes. The first change was in the course of study, Latin being added, Greek made optional, and special attention paid to history and literature. A complete course in science was also made a feature. Thorough work and regular attendance were demanded, and the result is so marked that no high school anywhere surpasses that of East Liverpool. The library was next created, and the greater task of improving the elementary instruction was taken up. The first great weakness was found in reading and spelling. With the methods employed, it was next to impossible to teach reading. The purchase of supplementary readers was proposed, and now we can challenge comparison with any city school in Ohio. The school course has been greatly enriched by our plan of language work. "We learn to express our thoughts by expressing them." Much attention is paid in the report to the teaching of literature, and special stress is laid upon the use of the Bible. Being convinced that a knowledge of the Bible is essential to sound scholarship preparations were made for its wider use in the schools. This was presented in an address to the teachers four years ago, and met with favor. The plan provided for the reading of stories from the Bible, memorizing of whole or parts of chapters, select portions correlation in the teaching of history, poetry and science. It is probably true that no public schools anywhere have taken such advanced ground in the use of the Bible in the teaching of history, literature and morals. In the absence of official action of the board appropriate reading of the Bible as a part of the morning service was recommended four years ago, provided it was agreeable to children and parents, caution being added that the reading should regard the rights of every pupil, and should not degenerate into a mere formality. All the discipline of the school is based on the moral law, and the great fact that God lives and sees. That he is above us and about us and within us, and that he expects us to be workers with him in all that we do. Everywhere pupils are taught to know the sacredness of the truth.

The teaching of technical grammar had been discontinued, and it was found necessary to teach it to the high school again. It was also introduced in the lower grades. The work in arithmetic also shows improvement, innovations having been introduced which improved the system of teaching. Teachers were also taught, a number of short sentences being prepared for their guidance. They have improved in scholarship, methods, enthusiasm and teaching power. No corps of teachers could show a more willing spirit to carry out a superintendent's suggestions, and whatever success has come to the work is due largely to the determination of the teachers to make our schools the equal of any in the land. They realize that scholarship is the first condition of teaching others, and have entered heartily into the reading course. The growth of the professional spirit among them has prompted some to take instruction in normal schools during the summer vacations. It is only by thus inspiring our teachers with higher ideals and by constantly insisting upon growing as a condition of being retained that good work can be done. A teacher who has ceased to grow is a blight in our school. It has been the uniform policy to retain if possible every teacher who continued to grow. From inadequate preliminary preparation a number were unable to continue. This necessitated the employment of teachers whose homes were out of the city. That any large number of such was employed was wholly due to the lack of qualified teachers in the city. The board and superintendent have agreed that everything being equal home teachers are always preferred.

The school system should represent one great progressive ideal. It is the duty of the superintendent to fashion and present it to the teachers. The largest factor in this ideal must be the teachers.

The Formal Opening Will Be a Grand Affair.

Manager McDonald has completed arrangements for the opening of Rock Spring next Saturday, and an elaborate affair it will be. Prof. A. K. The Richards team, of Braddock, always favorites here, will play morning and afternoon. The dining room will be in charge of Lee Barker, formerly of Kuhn Bros., Pittsburg, and will be conducted only on the most approved lines.

THE BALL GAME TOMORROW

East Liverpool Will Play Against the Duquesnes—Charley Buck Is Out In a Challenge—Some News For Those Who Like Sports.

George McNicol left on the midnight train for Toledo where he will join the Inter-state league team of that city to play short stop. George is a first class ball player and has many friends who will be glad to hear of his success. He is one of the best infielders in the city, is a hard hitter, and should prove a valuable man to the Toledo team.

George Brown, a local colored boxer, would like to meet any 120 pound man in the city.

Charles Buck is out in a challenge to play any pool player in the city a match game for $25 a side, he to make 200 points while his opponents score 150. He will also meet any player in Columbiana or Beaver counties in an even game for $50 or $100 a side.

The East Liverpool ball team will open the season at South Side tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock with the Duquesnes, of Pittsburg. The teams will line up:

LIVERPOOL.	Position.	DUQUESNE.
Davis	Catcher	T. McNeil
McShane	Pitcher	W. Seifert
Smurthwaite	Short	Rose
Albright	First	Toole
Kennedy	Second	Brown
Godwin	Third	McKenna
Reark	Middle	D. McNeil
Barker	Right	Whitmoeyer

The street cars will be running, and every effort will be made to accommodate the crowd.

A Pittsburg paper, in speaking of the game, says: "Tomorrow afternoon the Duquesnes will open up the new ball park at East Liverpool in a game with the team representing that city. East Liverpool has always been represented by a strong amateur team on the diamond, and the patrons of the game in that city expect their club to make a strong showing against the Duquesnes. The Duquesnes will leave for East Liverpool shortly after noon, arriving there in plenty of time to start the contest at 3:30."

In Society.

Mrs. W. R. Clark will entertain a number of friends Thursday evening at dinner.

Miss Edith McCord entertained friends last evening.

The Misses Croxall very pleasantly entertained a party of friends at their home in Fourth street last evening.

Drunk In an Alley.

John Rogers was arrested last evening, about 11 o'clock. A telephone message was received at the fire station which said that a man was sleeping in an alley off lower Second street. The patrol was sent out, and soon Officer Terrence brought the individual back. He was given a hearing and asked to pay $6.75.

Still Making Arrangements.

The library picnic committee met last evening with the board of directors, but nothing of importance was done. All committees reported progress, but stated the arrangements were not completed owing to the uncertainty of the race track being finished by June 15.

George Brown, a local colored boxer, would like to meet any 120 pound man in the city.

Charles Buck is out in a challenge to play any pool player in the city a match game for $25 a side, he to make 200 points while his opponents score 150. He will also meet any player in Columbian or Beaver counties in an even game for $50 or $100 a side.

The East Liverpool ball team will open the season at South Side tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock with the Duquesnes, of Pittsburg. The teams will line up:

LIVERPOOL.	Position.	DUQUESNE.
Davis	Catcher	T. McNeil
McShane	Pitcher	W. Seifert
Smurthwaite	Short	Rose
Albright	First	Toole
Kennedy	Second	Brown
Godwin	Third	McKenna
Reark	Middle	D. McNeil
Barker	Right	Whitmoier

The street cars will be running, and every effort will be made to accommodate the crowd.

A Pittsburg paper, in speaking of the game, says: "Tomorrow afternoon the Duquesnes will open up the new ball park at East Liverpool in a game with the team representing that city. East Liverpool has always been represented by a strong amateur team on the diamond, and the patrons of the game in that city expect their club to make a strong showing against the Duquesnes. The Duquesnes will leave for East Liverpool shortly after noon, arriving there in plenty of time to start the contest at 3:30."

In Society.

Mrs. W. R. Clark will entertain a number of friends Thursday evening at dinner.

Miss Edith McCord entertained friends last evening.

The Misses Croxall very pleasantly entertained a party of friends at their home in Fourth street last evening.

Drunk In an Alley.

The patrol was sent out, and soon Officer Terrence brought the individual back. He was given a hearing and asked to pay $6.75.

Still Making Arrangements.

The library picnic committee met last evening with the board of directors, but nothing of importance was done. All committees reported progress, but stated the arrangements were not completed owing to the uncertainty of the race track being finished by June 15.

COUNCIL IS IN EARNEST

It Has Taken Up the Old Cemetery Matter.

TRUSTEES HAD A GOOD CASE

They Presented Their Side of the Matter and Supported It by Facts—The Cost of Improving Pennsylvania Avenue—Other Improvements Mentioned.

The session of council last evening was very short.

All members were present but Mr. Ashbaugh and Mr. Stewart. The minutes were approved, and ordinances declaring it necessary to improve Cook street and construct a sewer in Elm street were placed on their second reading. The Pennsylvania avenue improvement resolution came up for the third time and was passed. Mr. Cain alone voting no. The report of the engineer said it would require an excavation of 60,000 cubic yards at a cost of 18 cents per yard to widen the road. The total cost would amount to about $10,800, or 45½ cents per foot front. He stated it would be impossible to widen the road by making an embankment, and the only thing to do was to cut out to the solid roadway, which would also make a respectable grade.

The city engineer ordinance was placed on its second reading, and the solicitor said a report would be made by the committee at the next meeting. The board of health rules were also permitted to go over again.

A petition signed by 44 residents asked that council proceed to create sewer district No. 2, and commence laying it at once. It went to the sewer commissioners.

Finance committee recommended paying $36,000 of water works bonds by taking $12,000 from the sinking fund and issuing $24,000 refunding bonds at 4 percent, to run 40 years, with an option after 20 years. The report was adopted.

The bond of George P. Rust for $5,000, signed by the East Liverpool and Rock Spring railway, was next on the program. Clerk Hanley explained that the board of improvement had approved it provided it suited council. Mr. Marshall said council had nothing to do with it, and Clerk Hanley said this action of the board had been taken on account of the sureties. Mr. Marshall made a motion that it be referred back, with the remarks: "Inasmuch as council has nothing to do with it and inasmuch as no person ever heard tell before of anybody going their own security." Cain seconded, and the improvement board will wrestle with the matter again. Before closing remarks were made by Mr. Marshall who said: "We are not ready to comment at present, but we would certainly not approve of the bond."

The new tax levy ordinance making the total 12 mills was passed under suspension of the rules as was an ordinance to issue $24,000 bonds.

Clerk Hanley explained that the city was entitled to one-half the tax received from bridges in the corporate limits which amounts to about $1,500 a year. A resolution was passed notifying the commissioners to pay it over at once.

Mr. Olmhausen brought up the subject of paving Jackson, Jefferson and Monroe streets. Mr. Marshall explained that the work would cost the city from $300 to $1,000, and the ordinances had passed their second reading when the finance committee reported against the improvements, inasmuch as they had no money, and the law specifically states the money must be certified in the treasury. The finance committee will look the matter up again.

The cemetery trustees were on hand, as exclusively stated in the NEWS REVIEW last evening, and J. C. Kelly explained that they had viewed the old cemetery, and it would be necessary to move 40 or 50 bodies at a cost of $80 or $100. Mr. Marshall wanted to know where they would be moved, and Mr. Kelly stated that there was a space in the potters' field of the old cemetery where they could be put. Mr. Marshall thought it would be advisable to move them to another cemetery. Mr. Kelly explained that it would cost $3 to $4 a lot in which to bury them. Mr. Marshall said this would bring the expense up to $150 or $175. Mr. Olmhausen wanted to know if the dead people had no friends, and Mr. Kelly, for the trustees, said: "Five graves have tombstones. One party when seen by us said to leave his graves alone and if they went over the hill he would sue the city for damages." Everybody wanted to know who the man was, and Mr. Kelly replied that it was Dick Burroughs.

The president remarked: "Dickie hard up for a lawsuit." Mr. Kelly said Burroughs intended to move the bodies when it suited his convenience. Mr. Marshall said it would be proper to re-enter them in some other cemetery even if it cost more money, as the cemetery would ultimately be used for some other purpose.

Mr. Dickey said: "It is a disgrace the way the cemetery is used, and we have been given to understand the officers of the city have given the children permission to play ball there."

Messrs. Cain, Marshall and Challis will meet with the trustees Friday evening and will also consider plans for abandoning cemetery.

The clerk was instructed to draw a warrant for $12,000 to pay water works bonds, and the engineer was instructed to fix the East Market street culvert at a cost of $150. The improvement of Avondale street from Bank street to Calcutta road, was referred to finance committee, and council adjourned.

His Romance.

"Of course there's a romance in my life," assented Fromer, when it was intimated that there was nothing of sentiment in his composition.

"I felt when I saw her, 'tis she or none on earth," is what Schiller wrote in his 'Bride of Messina.' That is exactly what I felt when I met the woman of my romance. Nobody can describe a woman. You can rave about her classic features, her speaking eyes, her neck like a pillar of marble touched with life, the graceful psyche knot that she twists to a crown of beauty, and all that kind of rant, but after it is done you can meet the woman and not know her. When I can picture a soul, I'll go into the business.

"Of course I was young when I met her. Otherwise I would have shown some slight imitation of sense and surrendered by degrees. Love at first sight is not uncommon, but it is restrained by a sense of propriety, by pride or by some other modifying influence. Every force in my being was co-operative. All impelled me to fall in love. There was no check, and I fell to the very depths.

"She refused me very prettily and very properly. I asked her if I could cherish no hope, intimating that to deprive me of hope would be immediately fatal. She gave me a very scant allowance. Then I went proudly away to win a fortune that I might lay it at her feet as an additional inducement. In four years I returned. The woman was there, just as I had left her, but not my ideal. While I was trying for moral strength enough to recall my vows she was mustering courage sufficient to tell me she was engaged to another man. She spoke first. Then I was so mad at the other fellow, whom I should have blessed, that I insisted she had broken my heart."—Detroit Free Press.

Marrying Made Pleasant.

All Gretna Green justices are not as frank as is E. C. Roberts of Lapeer, Mich. Squire Roberts—he is a justice of the peace, according to his stationery—makes a most candid bid for matrimonial fees. His letter heads are in themselves studies in open faced honesty of declaration, and if there is any yearning couple in the neighborhood of Lapeer that couple certainly yearns without cause, for the justice makes plain proclamation of his purpose. A letter head of his, sent hither by an admirer of his way of announcing himself, is decorated with a half tone portrait of the "judge," a soldierly looking fellow, who probably used to be an auctioneer, and under the cut is the designation, "The original and only exclusively matrimonial magistrate." Close beside and printed in cunning little letters is this alluring statement, "Office at the elevator or First National bank parlors, or wherever most convenient to swains," and below a further assertion is, "A fine line of high grade bridesmaids and groomsmen constantly on hand to assist in the service." Here are some other selections from the most remarkable letter head:

"Marriages solemnized promptly, accurately and eloquently. Plain ceremony—legal fee; osculation extra."

"Elopements a specialty. Night calls answered without extra charge. Consultation free."

Low Tide When the Moon Rises or Sets.

There is one point in the Chesapeake bay where the tide has a definite period to change, and that is the mouth of Hoopers strait, half way between the Capes, at its mouth, and Turkey point, at its head. It is always low tide at Hoopers strait when the moon rises or sets. At the same time it is high tide at Sandy point, up the bay, and at New point, mouth of York river, at the same moment, and at every point below the York river and out at the Capes it is ebb tide at the same time, and at every point from New Point Comfort to Hoopers strait it is flood tide at that time, and at every point between Sandy point and Hoopers strait it is ebb tide at that time, or when the moon rises or sets, and at all points above Sandy point it is flood tide, even to the head of tide water in every tributary of the bay above Sandy point.—Baltimore American.

The White Box.

The tailor's wife took her little boy out for a walk the day after they moved next door to the undertaker's. The little fellow stopped just outside the wide windows and pointed his chubby forefinger at the white coffin within.

"What's that, mother?" he asked. He had never seen a coffin.

"That's what they put little boys in when they're naughty," said the mother. "That's the way God punishes."

The bonny, boisterous lad was a great trial to her sometimes when she was weary with household cares, and she resorted to almost any tale to keep him quiet.

Every day after that the brown eyed boy stood for many minutes and looked at the tiny coffins behind the heavy glass. He grew very obedient, too, but the mother had become so accustomed to fault finding that she never noticed how well he minded, but continued to scold, just the same. With every reproach his beautiful, brown eyes would grow dark with a mist of tears, and he would ask half tearfully:

"Will you put me in the white box for that, mother? Will God punish me now?"

Months passed. One day the restless feet went astray again, and the mother, in the moment of her extreme vexation, punished him more severely than usual.

"Don't put me in the white box, mother," he pleaded over and over again between his sobs.

So saying, he fell asleep. When he awoke, the fever was on him, and the pattering feet wandered away no more. Another week passed. Then the brown eyes looked up into hers, the pale lips quivered, and he said feebly:

"Have you got the white box, mother? Has God punished me yet?"

Two days later the carriages came and bore him away in state. God's punishment had come.—Chicago Tribune.

Roman Epicures.

When at its zenith, the Roman empire laid all the barbaric countries of the world under contribution to supply the tables of its nobles and wealthy citizens with the fine luxuries of life. Asia and Africa poured in the rich spices and fruits of the tropics; Germany and the great north countries raised the grains and wild berries; Italy and the fertile land of the Franks cultivated the vineyards to make or express the wines; every strip of seacoast from the Mediterranean to the Baltic contributed its quota of fish, and the forests of Brittany yielded the wild game of the woods—birds, beasts and fowls—for the banquets of the proud, dissolute rulers of the vast empire. With the choice products of a great world so easily obtained there were wanton waste, foolish extravagance and a strange disregard of the value of expensive luxuries, and the historian dwelling upon these times delights in recapitulating the various articles of diet arranged in tempting manner upon the groaning tables at the great feasts and banquets.

But, excepting Nero's dish of peacock tongues and Cleopatra's cup of wine with the dissolved pearls in it, the menu of our modern banquets would compare favorably with those spread in the times when gluttony, licentiousness and greed for luxury were insidiously sapping the strength of Rome.—George E. Walsh in Lippincott's.

Two Prime Ministers.

One day Sir Henry Parkes, the late prime minister for New South Wales, was reading a recently published life of Mr. Gladstone, and laying down the volume for a moment he said: "I was thinking when reading it of a comparison between Mr. Gladstone's life and my own. When he was at Eton preparing himself for Oxford, enjoying all the advantages of a good education, with plenty of money, and being trained in every way for his future position as a statesman, I was working on a rope walk at 4 pence a day and suffered such cruel treatment that I was knocked down with a crowbar and did not recover my senses for half an hour. From the rope walk I went to labor in a brickyard, where I was again brutally used, and when Mr. Gladstone was at Oxford I was breaking stones on the queen's highway, with hardly enough clothing to protect me from the cold." Truly a striking and dramatic contrast between the early years of two prime ministers.—Pearson's Weekly.

Rewards That Are Sure, but Slow.

"The rewards of honesty and unswerving principle are sometimes slow, but that in the end they are sure and greater for their slow coming admits of no question," writes Edward W. Bok in "Problems of Young Men" in The Ladies' Home Journal. "Our principles are sometimes severely tested, but this testing is given us with a purpose. Holding fast to honorable principles is the basis upon which all sure successes are built. Some have to pass through more fire than others, but I firmly believe that the reward in the end is greater to those. What the world says of a man matters little in such a struggle. It is the great inner satisfaction which comes to a man that counts."

Two Prime Ministers.

One day Sir Henry Parkes, the late prime minister for New South Wales, was reading a recently published life of Mr. Gladstone, and laying down the volume for a moment he said: "I was thinking when reading it of a comparison between Mr. Gladstone's life and my own. When he was at Eton preparing himself for Oxford, enjoying all the advantages of a good education, with plenty of money, and being trained in every way for his future position as a statesman, I was working on a rope walk at 4 pence a day and suffered such cruel treatment that I was knocked down with a crowbar and did not recover my senses for half an hour. From the rope walk I went to labor in a brickyard, where I was again brutally used, and when Mr. Gladstone was at Oxford I was breaking stones on the queen's highway, with hardly enough clothing to protect me from the cold." Truly a striking and dramatic contrast between the early years of two prime ministers.—Pearson's Weekly.

Rewards That Are Sure, but Slow.

"The rewards of honesty and unswerving principle are sometimes slow, but that in the end they are sure and greater for their slow coming admits of no question," writes Edward W. Bok in "Problems of Young Men" in The Ladies' Home Journal. "Our principles are sometimes severely tested, but this testing is given us with a purpose. Holding fast to honorable principles is the basis upon which all sure successes are built. Some have to pass through more fire than others, but I firmly believe that the reward in the end is greater to those. What the world says of a man matters little in such a struggle. It is the great inner satisfaction which comes to a man that counts."

The Turkish language is said by scholars to be the softest and most musical language of modern times, being better adapted to the purposes of musical notation and recitative than even the Italian.

THEY PAY THE FREIGHT

And Sell Ware at the Bottom Prices.

THE KNIFE IS DEEP IN RATES

Inheard of Discounts Are Said to Account For Some of the Business Being Done by Manufacturing Concerns in the City. The Movement Has Not Spread.

Some people conversant with the ins and outs of the potting industry believe they can explain the unprecedented runs of a number of factories by the fact that prices have gone all to pieces, and ware is being sold for less money than was ever before known. In addition certain concerns are charged with paying the freight to given points in the west in order to meet competition.

The story has been in circulation for some time, but it is only in recent days that it has become generally discussed. According to the statement, several concerns have ceased to observe anything like the compact price, and are selling ware with discounts of 60, 10 and 5 per cent, and in some instances freight is paid through to St. Louis in order to meet the competition of importing houses, who have crates shipped direct from the factories across the ocean to the retailer on this side. Some who have heard the details say that it is impossible to make the cost of plain white ware at that rate, but nevertheless there are any number who declare it is being done every day. Since the white granite compact virtually went to pieces there has been nothing to prevent a general breaking up of prices, but few firms have taken advantage of the opportunity. It is also stated that they will not, and the practice of cutting is not expected to spread.

Justice and Correspondent.

Justice White of the supreme court is known among newspaper men as one of the kindest men in the world. Not long ago a correspondent found it necessary to call upon the justice at mid night for a copy of an opinion delivered by him in the court that day. Justice White was in bed asleep, and it was with great difficulty his servant was induced to awaken him. "If I did not know him to be the best man in the world, I would not dare to do it," she explained. The correspondent waited anxiously in the hall for the verdict. Would the justice come down stairs? And if he came, would it be for the purpose of looking up the desired document or of throwing the disturber of the peace out?

After a time the big justice came down the stairs in his pyjamas, rubbing his sleepy eyes. He was not enthusiastic about his midnight call, but he was very polite. As soon as the visitor had explained his errand the justice led the way to his library. There he got down on his knees and rummaged about through some dusty old papers in the bottom of a bookcase for the desired document. In a quarter of an hour he found it, and he was very glad he had been able to do so, though not half so well pleased as the newspaper man, to whom this bit of paper meant a "scoop" the next morning for the journal he represented.

"Excuse me a moment," said Justice White. In five minutes he returned, bearing with him a glass of toddy and a couple of Havanas. "Drink hearty, my boy," he said, "and light a cigar. Nasty night out. Good night."

"Now, that is what I call a real gentleman," said the correspondent to himself as he rushed away.—Washington Cor. Detroit Journal.

Large Shop.

Among the stories told of early Californian days is one which gives a remarkable picture of a blacksmith shop.

In the days before roads had been laid out and sawmills built a blacksmith settled on one of the river bars, and, erecting a forge of clay and stones, set the anvil on a big tree stump, which he had sawed low for that purpose, and did a thriving business sharpening the picks and drills of the miners.

He was himself a miner and did his blacksmithing almost entirely at night. Not knowing when his claim might fail or be disputed and be forced to move on to another place, he did not think it worth his while to build a regular shop.

One day two of the miners left the bar for a town some 20 miles away. As they came into the main trail leading to the blacksmith's haunt they met a man leading a horse which had lost a shoe and was stumbling badly.

"Strangers," said the man in a weary tone, "can you tell me how far it is to the blacksmith's shop? My horse has lost a shoe, and he's mighty lame."

"Well, now," said one of the miners, leaning forward and smiling in a most encouraging way, "don't you be for givin' up. You're in the blacksmith's shop now, though I'm bound to tell you it's about three miles before you'll strike the anvil."—Youth's Companion.

A Wonderful Blind Pianist.

Signor Arturo Nuttini is a blind pianist who is not a freak, but a player of remarkable ability. He was born in Florence 33 years ago and became totally blind in his first year, but he now plays the most difficult rhapsodies of Liszt, sonatas of Beethoven and other classical compositions with wonderful technic and expression. While Paderewski and his contemporaries play Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsodie No. 6," one of the most difficult compositions, in a transposed key, Signor Nuttini plays it in the original key—six sharps.

The way Signor Nuttini learns his pieces is curious. He has a little machine, consisting of a flat metal board, in which there are tiny grooves, over which he fits a sheet of thick paper, and, with the aid of a little ruler and awl, perforates all his music in a peculiar manner as his interpreter reads it from the regular staff. No music is too intricate for him to copy, and often after once copying the composition he can play it without first running his sensitive fingers over the perforations.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Did His Best.

If a servant obeys orders as far as he can and does his work correctly as far as he goes, what more can be expected? And yet the result is not always satisfactory, even to reasonable employers. Here is a story of a lady who owns a large and handsome dog, of which she is very fond, and perhaps a little proud. The other day she sent him out to the stable to be weighed, confiding the operation to a new servant, who looked upon the powerful animal with considerable awe. The man was gone a surprisingly long time, but at last reappeared and announced that the dog weighed 100 pounds.

"One hundred pounds!" repeated the lady. "Are you sure you weighed him right? He must weigh more than that."

"Oh, yes, marm, sure an I weighed him right, but I couldn't get him all on the scales."—Strand Magazine.

Amateur Essays.

Apropos of extravagant education, there is no more utter waste, whether in board schools or those of higher class, than essay writing by children. A poultry paper quotes a little boy's effort on that subject. "Geece is a nasty animal, for they will jump up your back and beat you with their feathers," writes this budding literary genius, and "the turkese is a large kind of hen." This may be an extreme instance, but it furnishes the text for an essay on "geece" of quite another kind.—London Sketch.

The Fat Man.

"Does any one know wherefore the heart of a woman clings to a fat man?" asks a waiter in a transatlantic paper in an article on the "Fat Man's Apothecosis." "Nature scarcely offers any object in the whole range of her attractions less heart stirring than he. And yet I have seen wives, sweethearts and sisters—mothers, of course, do not count—who became the most abject slaves, mere odalisques, in the presence of a man whose 200 pounds of adipose tissue was all compressed into a pastry 5 feet 5 inches, heels inclusive. And these were not ill favored women in point of culture either; far from it. I can recall quite readily a score or so of such amiable and devoted spouses who were among the shrewdest, most politic and brainiest women I ever met, and who certainly knew what they liked and were well fitted by nature to get it.

"It is time to idealize the fat man—to stop ridiculing him. The artist who caricatures him in the comic weeklies, the paragrapher who pokes sly fun at him in his daily column, the dude who puts up his monocle at him with a smile, are not in it with the fat man where the women are concerned. He may not be their Adonis, nor yet their Apollo. But he is their beau ideal of ponderous and gentle magnanimity. And he never stays single—he cannot. He is not allowed to. If he—from mistaken public policy—tries to be an old bachelor, some devoted woman will single him out in his oleaginous obscurity and fall to worshipping him in a wishful way that his comfort loving heart cannot withstand. And he marries her. And she straightway puts him up on a pedestal and worships him to the end. And from this height he can afford to look down benignly on Adonis and Apollo, unwedded and unworshiped."

They Pester House Agents.

"You would not think that we came much in contact with sentimentality in our business, but I can assure you that we do," said a very well known house agent.

"We are often a great deal bothered by people, most of whom are women, who desire that we will hand over to them the keys of houses, empty just at the time, in which they formerly lived and in which some relative, dearly beloved and much mourned, died. I have known even men who would take a camp stool into a house in this way and sit for hours in the bare and deserted rooms.

"But the worst nuisance is when people to whom we have let houses complain that some former tenant pesters them with applications, in respect of some particular birthday or otherwise, to sit for awhile in some room that is hallowed by associations. The complaints as to such applications are by no means rare in a business of the extent of ours, and the sentimental people often turn very nasty when they are denied.

"Last summer a lady committed suicide near a very valuable country hostelry a few miles out of London, and the proprietor of the hostelry gave evidence to the effect that the lady often called and asked that she might sit for hours in silence in the same corner as she and her husband, when the latter was alive, used to occupy every Sunday at tea time. This is just the sort of ultrasentimental person we have pretty commonly to deal with as the applicant for the keys of empty houses."—Pearson's Weekly.

A Humorous Tramp.

The tramp in real life, bereft of the picturesque atmosphere with which the comic papers surround him, is by no means a hideous creature, but a suburban resident claims to have discovered one with a vein of humor which would bring joy to the heart of the comic paragrapher. "The fellow stopped at my residence," remarked the suburbanite, "and asked for something to eat. My wife chanced to be in the kitchen, and she told him he could have some dinner if he would first saw some wood. This the tramp agreed to do and repaired with the saw to the wood shed. After half an hour had elapsed and the hobo had not come to claim his reward my wife determined to investigate. Going to the shed, she saw that both tramp and saw had disappeared, while the wood pile was undisturbed. A piece of dirty paper pinned to the door caught her attention, and after considerable difficulty she deciphered the message, which read as follows: 'Just tell them that you saw me, but you did not see me saw.'"—Philadelphia Record.

Weight Does Not Count.

A large brain does not signify intellect. The brain of an illiterate person in a low station of life has been found to outweigh those of the most celebrated scientists, poets and philosophers.

A Parisian inventor is endeavoring to perfect a phonograph watch. If he is successful, the world will soon see a watch which, by touching a spring, will whisper the time in your ear.

A Pretty Resort.

A sojourn at Winona Assembly Grounds at Eagle Lake, Ind., near Warsaw, on the Fort Wayne route, will prove a pleasant summer outing. This delightful resort is the site of the youngest of the Chautauque assemblies, and its attractions combine facilities for recreation, entertainment, instruction and devotion.

Eagle Lake is a beautiful sheet of water, surrounded by several hundred acres of romantic woodland which covers one stretch of nearly two miles. The lake affords opportunity for aquatic pastimes, the boating, bathing and fishing being excellent. In addition to numerous rowboats there are several pleasure steamers on the lake.

The shady grounds are occupied by many pretty cottages and summer homes of persons who annually enjoy the beauties of the place, strengthening body in the invigorating atmosphere and enriching the mind by the special advantages the summer school offers.

A fine park has been laid out on the shore of the lake. A large auditorium, amphitheatre, college halls, hotels and restaurant have also been constructed on the grounds for the accommodation of visitors. There is also a race track and space set aside for out-door athletic sports.

In addition to the Presbyterian General Assembly which will be in session on the Assembly Grounds from May 20 to June 2, a number of other large meetings will be held on the grounds during the summer of 1897, including the Indiana State Sunday School Convention, Western Association of Writers, Indiana State W. C. T. U., Indiana Y. M. C. A., Encampment, National Medical Society, Boys' Brigade, and Indiana State Christian Endeavor Convention.

Excursion tickets to Eagle Lake will be on sale via Pennsylvania Lines during the summer season. Details regarding rates, time of trains, etc., may be ascertained by addressing the nearest passenger or ticket agent of the Pennsylvania lines, or by applying to F. Van Dusen, chief assistant general passenger agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Full information concerning the Assembly and Summer School, cost of entertainment, etc., may be secured upon application to Secretary Sol. C. Dickey, Eagle Lake, Ind.

New Entrance to New York.

All are convenient locations; Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, in the downtown district, and Twenty-third street in the uptown district. The latter entrance will be formally opened May 16, when two new, commodious ferryboats, double-deckers, constructed especially for the Pennsylvania lines and furnished and fitted in up-to-date style, will be placed in service between the Jersey City station and Twenty-third street, connecting with all inbound and outbound trains over the Pennsylvania system, the same as the boats running between that station and Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, which will also continue in the service.

The Pennsylvania lines' three entrances into New York enable passengers to quickly reach the business portion in the lower end of the city, as well as the hotels and business blocks in the very heart of the great metropolis. The ride across the river is a delightful and refreshing termination to an enjoyable trip. All through trains from the west, over the Pennsylvania lines, land passengers in New York between 9:30 a. m., and 9:30 p. m., treating them to a grand view of the city's water front; its extensive docks where at almost any time may be seen ships of many nations. The wonderful panorama gives visitors a slight idea of the magnitude of New York. The new Twenty-third street ferry line is particularly noteworthy in this respect.

Summer Outing.

The principal places of summer sojourn along the Atlantic ocean in the Alleghenies, the Adirondacks, Catskills, and mountains of the east, and in the lake region and Northern Michigan and the northwest, may be readily reached over the Pennsylvania lines.

Special information regarding the leading resorts and the advantages enjoyed in journeying to them over the Pennsylvania route has been compiled and printed in convenient form. The matter is profusely illustrated with photographic reproductions of seashore scenes and includes views at Atlantic City, Cape May, Long Branch and other resorts along the Atlantic coast; also of Cresson, Bedford Springs, and romantic mountain retreats, and of Petoskey, Mackinac, and the summer havens in Michigan and the northwest.

Persons contemplating summer outing trips will find it a valuable guide in shaping preliminaries. Copies may be obtained by addressing D. C. MacWaters, district passenger agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

THEY PAY THE FREIGHT

And Sell Ware at the Bottom Prices.

THE KNIFE IS DEEP IN RATES

Unheard of Discounts Are Said to Account For Some of the Business Being Done by Manufacturing Concerns in the City. The Movement Has Not Spread.

Some people conversant with the ins and outs of the potting industry believe they can explain the unprecedented runs of a number of factories by the fact that prices have gone all to pieces, and ware is being sold for less money than was ever before known. In addition certain concerns are charged with paying the freight to given points in the west in order to meet competition.

The story has been in circulation for some time, but it is only in recent days that it has become generally discussed. According to the statement, several concerns have ceased to observe anything like the compact price, and are selling ware with discounts of 60, 10 and 5 per cent, and in some instances freight is paid through to St. Louis in order to meet the competition of importing houses, who have crates shipped direct from the factories across the ocean to the retailer on this side. Some who have heard the details say that it is impossible to make the cost of plain white ware at that rate, but nevertheless there are any number who declare it is being done every day. Since the white granite compact virtually went to pieces there has been nothing to prevent a general breaking up of prices, but few firms have taken advantage of the opportunity. It is also stated that they will not, and the practice of cutting is not expected to spread.

Justice and Correspondent.

Justice White of the supreme court is known among newspaper men as one of the kindest men in the world. Not long ago a correspondent found it necessary to call upon the justice at mid night for a copy of an opinion delivered by him in the court that day. Justice White was in bed asleep, and it was with great difficulty his servant was induced to awaken him. "If I did not know him to be the best man in the world, I would not dare to do it," she explained. The correspondent waited anxiously in the hall for the verdict. Would the justice come down stairs? And if he came, would it be for the purpose of looking up the desired document or of throwing the disturber of the peace out?

After a time the big justice came down the stairs in his pyjamas, rubbing his sleepy eyes. He was not enthusiastic about his midnight call, but he was very polite. As soon as the visitor had explained his errand the justice led the way to his library. There he got down on his knees and rummaged about through some dusty old papers in the bottom of a bookcase for the desired document. In a quarter of an hour he found it, and he was very glad he had been able to do so, though not half so well pleased as the newspaper man, to whom this bit of paper meant a "scoop" the next morning for the journal he represented.

"Excuse me a moment," said Justice White. In five minutes he returned, bearing with him a glass of toddy and a couple of Havanas. "Drink hearty, my boy," he said, "and light a cigar. Nasty night out. Good night."

"Now, that is what I call a real gentleman," said the correspondent to himself as he rushed away.—Washington Cor. Detroit Journal.

Large Shop.

Among the stories told of early Californians is one which gives a remarkable picture of a blacksmith shop.

In the days before roads had been laid out and sawmills built a blacksmith settled on one of the river bars, and, erecting a forge of clay and stones, set the anvil on a big tree stump, which he had sawed low for that purpose, and did a thriving business sharpening the picks and drills of the miners.

He was himself a miner and did his blacksmithing almost entirely at night. Not knowing when his claim might fail or be disputed and be forced to move on to another place, he did not think it worth his while to build a regular shop.

One day two of the miners left the bar for a town some 20 miles away. As they came into the main trail leading to the blacksmith's haunt they met a man leading a horse which had lost a shoe and was stumbling badly.

"Strangers," said the man in a weary tone, "can you tell me how far it is to the blacksmith's shop? My horse has lost a shoe, and he's mighty lame."

"Well, now," said one of the miners, leaning forward and smiling in a most encouraging way, "don't you be for givin' up. You're in the blacksmith's shop now, though I'm bound to tell you it's about three miles before you'll strike the anvil."—Youth's Companion.

A Wonderful Blind Pianist.

Signor Arturo Nuttini is a blind pianist who is not a freak, but a player of remarkable ability. He was born in Florence 33 years ago and became totally blind in his first year, but he now plays the most difficult rhapsodies of Liszt, sonatas of Beethoven and other classical compositions with wonderful technique and expression. While Paderewski and his contemporaries play Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsodie No. 6," one of the most difficult compositions, in a transposed key, Signor Nuttini plays it in the original key—six sharps.

The way Signor Nuttini learns his pieces is curious. He has a little machine, consisting of a flat metal board, in which there are tiny grooves, over which he fits a sheet of thick paper, and, with the aid of a little ruler and awl, perforates all his music in a peculiar manner as his interpreter reads it from the regular staff. No music is too intricate for him to copy, and often after once copying the composition he can play it without first running his sensitive fingers over the perforations.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Did His Best.

If a servant obeys orders as far as he can and does his work correctly as far as he goes, what more can be expected? And yet the result is not always satisfactory, even to reasonable employers. Here is a story of a lady who owns a large and handsome dog, of which she is very fond, and perhaps a little proud. The other day she sent him out to the stable to be weighed, confiding the operation to a new servant, who looked upon the powerful animal with considerable awe. The man was gone a surprisingly long time, but at last reappeared and announced that the dog weighed 100 pounds.

"One hundred pounds!" repeated the lady. "Are you sure you weighed him right? He must weigh more than that."

"Oh, yes, marm, sure an I weighed him right, but I couldn't get him all on the scales."—Strand Magazine.

Amateur Essays.

Apropos of extravagant education, there is no more utter waste, whether in board schools or those of higher class, than essay writing by children. A poultry paper quotes a little boy's effort on that subject. "Geece is a nasty animal, for they will jump up your back and beat you with their feathers," writes this budding literary genius, and "the turkese is a large kind of hen." This may be an extreme instance, but it furnishes the text for an essay on "geece" of quite another kind.—London Sketch.

The Fat Man.

"Does any one know wherefore the heart of a woman clings to a fat man?" asks a waiter in a transatlantic paper in an article on the "Fat Man's Apotheosis." "Nature scarcely offers any object in the whole range of her attractions less heart stirring than he. And yet I have seen wives, sweethearts and sisters—mothers, of course, do not count—who became the most abject slaves, mere odalisques, in the presence of a man whose 200 pounds of adipose tissue was all compressed into a paltry 5 feet 5 inches, heels inclusive. And these were not ill favored women in point of culture either; far from it. I can recall quite readily a score or so of such amiable and devoted spouses who were among the shrewdest, most politic and brainiest women I ever met, and who certainly knew what they liked and were well fitted by nature to get it.

"It is time to idealize the fat man—to stop ridiculing him. The artist who caricatures him in the comic weeklies, the paragrapher who pokes sly fun at him in his daily column, the dude who puts up his monocle at him with a smile, are not in it with the fat man where the women are concerned. He may not be their Adonis, nor yet their Apollo. But he is their beau ideal of ponderous and gentle magnanimity. He is never stays single—he cannot. And he is not allowed to. If he—from mistaken public policy—tries to be an old bachelor, some devoted woman will single him out in his oleaginous obscurity and fall to worshipping him in a wistful way that his comfort loving heart cannot withstand. And he marries her. And she straightway puts him up on a pedestal and worships him to the end. And from this height he can afford to look down benignly on Adonis and Apollo, unwedded and unworshiped."

They Pester House Agents.

"You would not think that we came much in contact with sentimentality in our business, but I can assure you that we do," said a very well known house agent.

"We are often a great deal bothered by people, most of whom are women, who desire that we will hand over to them the keys of houses, empty just at the time, in which they formerly lived and in which some relative, dearly beloved and much mourned, died. I have known even men who would take a camp stool into a house in this way and sit for hours in the bare and deserted rooms.

"But the worst nuisance is when people to whom we have let houses complain that some former tenant pesters them with applications, in respect of some particular birthday or otherwise, to sit for awhile in some room that is hallowed by associations. The complaints as to such applications are by no means rare in a business of the extent of ours, and the sentimental people often turn very nasty when they are denied.

"Last summer a lady committed suicide near a very valuable country hostelry a few miles out of London, and the proprietor of the hostelry gave evidence to the effect that the lady often called and asked that she might sit for hours in silence in the same corner as she and her husband, when the latter was alive, used to occupy every Sunday at tea time. This is just the sort of ultrasentimental person we have pretty commonly to deal with as the applicant for the keys of empty houses."—Pearson's Weekly.

A Humorous Tramp.

The tramp in real life, bereft of the picturesque atmosphere with which the comic papers surround him, is by no means a hideous creature, but a suburban resident claims to have discovered one with a vein of humor which would bring joy to the heart of the comic paragrapher. "The fellow stopped at my residence," remarked the suburbanite, "and asked for something to eat. My wife chanced to be in the kitchen, and she told him he could have some dinner if he would first saw some wood. This the tramp agreed to do and repaired with the saw to the wood shed. After half an hour had elapsed and the hobo had not come to claim his reward my wife determined to investigate. Going to the shed, she saw that both tramp and saw had disappeared, while the wood pile was undisturbed. A piece of dirty paper pinned to the door caught her attention, and after considerable difficulty she deciphered the message, which read as follows: 'Just tell them that you saw me, but you did not see me saw.'"—Philadelphia Record.

Weight Doesn't Count.

A large brain does not signify intellect. The brain of an illiterate person in a low station of life has been found to outweigh those of the most celebrated scientists, poets and philosophers.

A Parisian inventor is endeavoring to perfect a phonograph watch. If he is successful, the world will soon see a watch which, by touching a spring, will whisper the time in your ear.

A Pretty Resort.

A sojourn at Winona Assembly Grounds at Eagle Lake, Ind., near Warsaw, on the Fort Wayne route, will prove a pleasant summer outing. This delightful resort is the site of the youngest of the Chautauqua assemblies, and its attractions combine facilities for recreation, entertainment, instruction and devotion.

Eagle Lake is a beautiful sheet of water, surrounded by several hundred acres of romantic woodland which covers one stretch of nearly two miles. The lake affords opportunity for aquatic pastimes, the boating, bathing and fishing being excellent. In addition to numerous rowboats there are several pleasure steamers on the lake.

The shady grounds are occupied by many pretty cottages and summer homes of persons who annually enjoy the beauties of the place, strengthening body in the invigorating atmosphere and enriching the mind by the special advantages the summer school offers.

A fine park has been laid out on the shore of the lake. A large auditorium, amphitheatre, college halls, hotels and restaurant have also been constructed on the grounds for the accommodation of visitors. There is also a race track and space set aside for out-door athletic sports.

In addition to the Presbyterian General Assembly which will be in session on the Assembly Grounds from May 20 to June 2, a number of other large meetings will be held on the grounds during the summer of 1897, including the Indiana State Sunday School Convention, Western Association of Writers, Indiana State W. C. T. U., Indiana Y. M. C. A., Encampment, National Medical Society, Boys' Brigade, and Indiana State Christian Endeavor Convention.

Excursion tickets to Eagle Lake will be on sale via Pennsylvania Lines during the summer season. Details regarding rates, time of trains, etc., may be ascertained by addressing the nearest passenger or ticket agent of the Pennsylvania lines, or by applying to F. Van Dusen, chief assistant general passenger agent, Pittsburg, Pa. Full information concerning the Assembly and Summer School, cost of entertainment, etc., may be secured upon application to Secretary Sol. C. Dickey, Eagle Lake, Ind.

New Entrance to New York.

All are convenient locations; Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, in the downtown district, and Twenty-third street in the uptown district. The latter entrance will be formally opened May 16, when two new, commodious ferryboats, double-deckers, constructed especially for the Pennsylvania lines and furnished and fitted in up-to-date style, will be placed in service between the Jersey City station and Twenty-third street, connecting with all inbound and outbound trains over the Pennsylvania system, the same as the boats running between that station and Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, which will also continue in the service.

The Pennsylvania lines' three entrances into New York enable passengers to quickly reach the business portion in the lower end of the city, as well as the hotels and business blocks in the very heart of the great metropolis. The ride across the river is a delightful and refreshing termination to an enjoyable trip. All through trains from the west, over the Pennsylvania lines, land passengers in New York between 9:30 a. m., and 9:30 p. m., treating them to a grand view of the city's water front; its extensive docks where at almost any time may be seen ships of many nations. The wonderful panorama gives visitors a slight idea of the magnitude of New York. The new Twenty-third street ferry line is particularly noteworthy in this respect.

Summer Outing.

The principal places of summer sojourn along the Atlantic ocean in the Alleghenies, the Adirondacks, Catskills, and mountains of the east, and in the lake region and Northern Michigan and the northwest, may be readily reached over the Pennsylvania lines.

Special information regarding the leading resorts and the advantages enjoyed in journeying to them over the Pennsylvania route has been compiled and printed in convenient form. The matter is profusely illustrated with photographic reproductions of seashore scenes and includes views at Atlantic City, Cape May, Long Branch and other resorts along the Atlantic coast; also of Cresson, Bedford Springs, and romantic mountain retreats, and of Petoskey, Mackinac, and the summer havens in Michigan and the northwest.

Persons contemplating summer outing trips will find it a valuable guide in shaping preliminaries. Copies may be obtained by addressing D. C. MacWaters, district passenger agent, Pittsburg, Pa.

HE FELL FROM A CAR

And Cut a Long Gash In His Head.

THE SMALL BOYS WERE PLAYING

On the Switch at the West End Pottery When the Accident Happened—Young Burchell Is Better Today, and Will Get Well.

The 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Burchell, of Florence street, met with a serious accident, yesterday afternoon.

In company with some boys he was playing on a box car at the West End pottery, when he lost his footing and fell a distance of at least 12 feet. In falling his head struck the edge of a tie cutting a large gash. He was rendered unconscious, and was picked up and carried to his home. A physician was summoned who discovered the cut on his forehead extended to the bone, and the periosteum was laid back for an inch and a half. The periosteum and wound were sewed up, and beyond a bruise on the right thigh the lad escaped other injury. Today he is resting easy.

He Had Fallen Off.

Patrick was a new man in the light horse regiment, but his cheerfulness and witty replies had already established him as a favorite. He had one drawback, however, and that was his awkwardness when on a horse's back. Naturally his position required the opposite of this, and Patrick worked hard and faithfully to acquire the ease and naturalness of his comrades when riding. He congratulated himself that this was at last accomplished. But one day when on parade his horse shied and threw him with considerable force. When he regained consciousness, he found that his arm had been broken with the fall. With his usual characteristic good humor the poor fellow smiled in his pain as he said: "Well, well, it's too bad. I thought I had improved in my riding a great deal, but instead I have fallen off."—Harper's Round Table.

A Hard Fall.

Tom McClure received a hard fall from his bicycle last evening in Fifth street. He was riding with only one hand on the handlebar when the wheel struck a stone, causing him to take a header. He was severely bruised, but not seriously hurt.
